

NO JOY FOR GROVER
IN HAWAIIAN NEWS.PRESIDENT SENDS ANOTHER
MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

It includes the Dispatches from Willis But Shows Nothing to Strengthen the Administration's Position—Tariff Bill Still Hangs Fire, Bland's Measure Blocking the Way.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Cleveland sent a message to congress this morning containing the dispatches from Willis giving the condition of things in Hawaii. Nothing startling was developed and backers of the president's policy got little comfort out of the situation. The tariff bill has not yet been brought forth. The Bland seigniorage bill blocks the way of any immediate tariff discussion in the senate and emphasizes the necessity of having the bill before the finance committee, so that it can be going over the provisions in detail while the senate is engaged in silver legislation. The democrats on the finance committee are said to have recognized the situation by making a tacit agreement with the silver senators that the seigniorage bill should be considered from now on with a view of passing it before the tariff bill is taken up.

The sugar duty advocates profess ignorance of what, if anything, has been done in their behalf, and it appears probable that if the committee has really completed its work it has decided upon a schedule of prices and determined to submit it without further parley or without submission to those interested.

Thursday is said by some to be the time now fixed for reporting the bill. This is the report which comes from the wise men on the finance committee.

SICKLES ATTACKS LOCHREN.

Says His Interpretation of the Pension Laws Is Defective and Unjust.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The debate on the pension appropriation bill was continued yesterday in the house, the feature of the day being Gen. Sickles' speech criticising the action of Commissioner Lochren. An agreement was reached whereby the debate on the bill will close at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

After some unimportant business the house went into committee of the whole for the further consideration of the pension appropriation bill. Mr. Sickles (dem., N. Y.) took the floor and made an earnest speech against Commissioner Lochren's interpretation of the pension law. He said Commissioner Lochren was as defective in his law as in his manner. He had only to go to his law dictionary to find what was right and what a vested right. The pension was a vested right conferred by law.

Mr. Grosvenor (rep., Ohio) said the charge that there was wholesale fraud in the pension rolls was false. There was more fraud in the custom house in New York in a single year than in all the pension cases that have ever come before the pension bureau; there were more illegal moonshine stills, ten to one, in the United States than dishonest soldiers on the pension roll.

Mr. Mahon (rep., Pa.), who concluded the debate for the day, defended the commissioner of pensions.

IN THE SENATE.

Mr. Hill Wants a Resolution Referred to the Committee on Finance.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—In the senate yesterday Mr. Hill awakened interest by offering the following resolution and asking its reference to the committee on finance:

"Resolved, That the senate finance committee frame amendments to the said bill, omitting the said internal and direct taxes newly proposed, and instead thereof make provision for sufficient revenue by tariffing other foreign imports and otherwise revising the tariff without creating a deficiency."

Mr. Harris (dem., Tenn.) moved the second reading of the Bland seigniorage bill. In doing so he stated to the senate, and especially to the senator from Nevada (Mr. Stewart), that the latter was not a more earnest advocate of silver coinage than he. But he (Harris) believed there was one question which should take precedence over this, and without any breach of confidence he could state that the finance committee was on the verge of reporting the tariff bill to the senate. He therefore objected to further proceedings on the seigniorage bill, and under that objection it would have to go to the calendar.

Considerable discussion followed, in which Senators Allison, Hale, Manderson and Stewart took part. The last named gave notice that after the expiration of the morning hour at 2 o'clock he would move to take up the Bland bill and have it made the unfinished business before the senate until a vote could be taken.

Some other routine business was transacted, and at 3:05 p. m. the senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business and at 3:20 adjourned.

House Cautions Does Nothing.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The democratic house caucus last night to consider the advisability of strengthening the rules failed to secure a quorum and the fifty-eight democrats present adjourned without reaching any conclusion. It was felt that the time for a strong rule was past now that the Bland bill was out of the way.

MARKETS FOR AMERICAN WHEAT.

Chinese Prefer to Use Rice Which Is Cheaper Than Flour.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The United States consul at Hong Kong reports that little can be done to enlarge the market for American wheat at that point, as the Chinese use the cheaper rice in preference to flour. He believes, however, that the opening to trade of new districts on the Yellow river and the reduction of duties at Canton will result in some increase.

The consul at Liege, Belgium, suggests the formation of agencies in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants to push the trade. The Belgian millers all admit the superiority of American grain and but for its higher price it would control the market. As it is, although no effort has been made, the trade has increased in the last five years at the rate of 10 per cent per annum.

Anti-Option Hearing.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Chicago board of trade will to-day have a half-hour in which to present its views on the anti-option bill. The hearing yesterday brought out a renewal of the sharp colloquy between Mr. Hatch and the commercial representatives. Mr. Hatch characterized the written statement of President Bloss, of the New York Cotton Exchange, as "an arraignment of the committee." He said that an objection to it would cause its exclusion, but he would raise no objection. Mr. Bloss' statement was very pointed in urging that the Hatch bill was pernicious and an unwarranted meddling with the individual liberty of citizens.

Springer Not in the Race.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Speaking of the Illinois state convention Mr. Springer said: "I shall not be a candidate. All of my efforts will be directed toward securing a re-election to the house. That is as far as my ambition extends."

BEST SPEECH OF ALL.

Attorney Bottum's Great Address in the Coughlin Trial.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Assistant State's Attorney Bottum continued yesterday his speech closing the case for the state in the Cronin murder trial. Men who sat through the former trial of the case and heard the great forensic efforts of Longenecker, Hynes and Ingham, express the opinion that Mr. Bottum made the greatest speech delivered in the case at any time. A noticeable feature in his argument is the absence of all bitterness, vindictiveness or invective. He is the "friend of the court," presenting the evidence to the jury in a passionless way. True, he sometimes works up to rhetorical heights, but even in the very vehemence of his eloquence he does not betray any feeling against the man on trial.

At 2 o'clock Mr. Bottum resumed his argument. He will probably conclude this afternoon, when the case will go to the jury.

SHOT DEAD AT AN ELECTION.

Riot Between Opposing Factions at Troy, N. Y.—One Man Dead.

TROY, N. Y., March 7.—Robert Ross, a republican poll watcher, was shot dead and his brother William was badly wounded about 12:30 o'clock yesterday during the progress of the election for city officers. A man named "Bat" Shea was also shot. William Ross' injuries are serious, but not fatal. Up to 2 o'clock the men who did the shooting had not been captured. Shea died later while being cared for by physicians. It was claimed by the rioters that the shots were fired by the police, who admit using clubs and revolvers, but the bystanders say that pistols were drawn before the police took a hand.

Gregory Was Not Robbed.

DEXTER, Mich., March 7.—O. C. Gregory, assistant cashier of the Dexter Savings bank, has confessed to Detective Baker of Detroit that he himself stole the $3,500 from the vault of the bank last Thursday and that his story of being attacked by masked robbers is a fiction. What led to the confession was the finding of over $300 concealed in a room back of the bank. The detective suspected Gregory, who was arrested yesterday.

Twenty of Them Are Now Bankrupt.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 7.—The sureties on ex-State Treasurer Woodruff's bonds held a meeting last night and agreed to make a settlement with the State without further contest. Thirty bondsmen were present. Of that number twenty are hopelessly insolvent. The loss will fall on ten men, all residents of Little Rock.

Penoyer Approves Income Tax.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 7.—Gov. Penoyer of Oregon addressed 1,500 people last night at the Armory, the occasion being a rally of the people's party on the eve of the city election. The governor confined his remarks to the Wilson bill, saying the income tax was the only redeemable feature of the bill. He was well received.

ROBBERS FOILED
BY A NERVY MAN.FUTILE ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP
AN M. & O. TRAIN.

Three Masked Men Outwitted by a Plucky Messenger—Description in the Hands of the Officers—The Fourth Attempt to Rob the Train in Nine Months.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., March 7.—Train No. 5 on the Mobile & Ohio, Conductor William Eckles and Engineer Thomas Ryan, which left the Relay depot at 8:55 p. m., was again held up about three miles below the city last night.

It is reported that two of the men jumped upon the engine and while one covered the engineer with a revolver the other looked after the fireman. They were told to step down and immediately complied with the request. The third man stood back near the express car, and when he noticed the engineer and fireman jump from the engine with his pals he yelled to the express man to open the door, and stated that unless his wish was complied with he would hit the door with a stick of dynamite.

The messenger was not so easily cowed. He told the robber that if he came into the car he would kill him. Then the robber left. It seems that the robbers were not prepared for a fight.

Officers Bowler, Fahy, Mansfield and Wilkobraski started for the scene immediately. The robbers were fairly described by the trainmen.

The three men jumped on the train from the side of the track when it stopped for a moment at Pittsburg Crossing. The men wore handkerchiefs about their faces, but otherwise were not particular about their disguise. After leaving the train they started back along the track, but whether they had a buggy or other vehicle in waiting can not be learned, as a number of farmers had since passed along the road. The clerk of the Mobile and Ohio depot was spoken to by telephone at 11 o'clock, but never heard of the robbery. The message was the first instructions he had of any hold-up. Why no report was made of the attempted robbery at the depot, so that the track of the robbers could be shut off, can not be understood by the police, who were working on the case.

Sergt. Bowler took his men down through Forest Lawn and as far as the river below, but no trace of the robbers could be learned. They heard of two men who had passed up the road, but they had an hour and a half start and could easily reach the opposite side of the river.

This makes the fourth boarding for robbery of the same train at the same point, Forest Lawn, within the last nine months. The robbers held up the train April 25 of last year and June 8 following they again boarded the train. The fellows waited for six months and Dec. 23, just two days before last Christmas, hopped on at the same crossing where the two boarded the train last night, and in a good fight succeeded in relieving the express car of a good sum.

The Southern Express company, which suffered heavily by the previous robberies, had become cautious, and since the last one has not made any heavy shipments on this train. Mr. Frazier, in charge of the Southern Express company's offices in St. Louis, said the agent on the express car of the robbed train was a new man named Franklin. "The train which leaves St. Louis at 8:15 p. m. rarely ever, so far as I know, carries any great amount of valuables," he continued. "There are two through safes in the car, which are provided with combination locks, in which all valuables are kept. These safes are not under my charge and I know nothing of their contents."

TWO PASSENGERS HURT.

Trolley-Car Runs Away on a Heavy Grade at Sing Sing.

SING SING, N. Y., March 7.—A trolley-car became unmanageable in coming down the hill at Central avenue yesterday. At the curve into Walter street it jumped the track and ran across the street, crashing into the sidewalk and an awning. Of the eight passengers two were seriously hurt. Mr. Bedell was thrown down and the stove upset upon his hand, burning him quite badly. Miss Carrie Young was thrown from one end of the car to the other and was taken out unconscious. She is injured internally.

Four Dead in a Mine.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 7.—Four men of a gang of shaft sinkers were killed in the Richmond shaft. The accident was caused by the fall of a shelf of rock from the side of the shaft near the bottom, and a consequent explosion of gas. Three of the men were crushed to death by the rock. The bodies have not yet been recovered owing to the accumulation of a body of after-damp, into which it was dangerous to go.

Fear the Daltons.

SEDALIA, Mo., March 7.—The American express and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas officials are much disturbed by news from the territory of the movements of the Dalton gang of outlaws. Every indication points to a raid on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road, and as a result the road's officials and those of the American Express company have put on extra guards, each supplied with a shotgun whose shells each contain sixteen buckshot.

SPEECHES SHORT IN THE ROSTER CASE.COURT PUTS A LIMIT ON THE ATTORNEYS.

Olin Occupies All of the Morning with His Presentation of the Plaintiffs' Case—All the Addresses Will be Short and Confined Entirely to Plain Facts.

MADISON, March 7.—The entire morning in the circuit court was taken up by Mr. Olin, attorney for the plaintiffs, in opening the roster case to the jury, the court restricting the limits of his address to the mere presentation of evidence intended to be introduced and the theory of the plaintiffs' case. None of the speeches will be anywhere near as long as last week.

MADISON, Wis., March 7.—The second jury in the roster case was secured yesterday with last man on the special venire of thirty. The plaintiffs tried William Fanning, one of the jurors, on the charge of having made a wager on the result of the case, producing a friend of Fanning, who swore that he had bet the cigars with the juror some weeks ago. Fanning disputed him and the plaintiffs removed the juror. In the afternoon Mr. Olin made the opening argument for plaintiffs.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 7.—Yesterday at 5 o'clock the rescuers cleaning the gangway of the Gaylord mine at Plymouth, in which thirteen men were entombed three weeks ago, came upon the car which the buried men were using. STREET CAR MEN IN A RIOT.

The Sheriff Calls for Sixty Deputies at Youngstown, Ohio.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, March 7.—The first street railway riot that ever occurred in this city was witnessed by thousands of citizens yesterday afternoon on Central Square. It had been known that Manager A. A. Anderson of the electric street railway company had been bringing outside men here to take the places of the strikers, and threats of rioting were freely made if the company should attempt to run the cars. It is said the strikers themselves took no part in the proceedings.

A crowd congregated in front of the power-house jeering at the imported men penned up there. A number of boys shoved two of the cars over the hill west of the power house, smashing them in the collision. Persons attempting to carry food to the besieged men in the afternoon met with rough treatment from the mob, the edibles being scattered over the sidewalk. Affairs presented a very ugly appearance.

The police are powerless and Sheriff J. K. Orr was called upon for assistance. He has issued summons for sixty deputies, the list including the most prominent business men. The street railroad management says the cars shall be run if the state militia be called out. An ugly time is expected to-day.

Thousands of Men to Get Work.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 7.—Information from a prominent official of the H. C. Frick Coke company is to the effect that within two weeks nearly every coke oven in the Connellsville region will be fired up. The move will cover at least 90 per cent of all the ovens in the region—more, it can be said, than have been in operation for three years past. At the very lowest estimate 6,000 men who are now idle will be given employment.

HAVOC BY A WHIRLWIND.

Twelve Immense Smokestacks Are Lifted Into the Air.

PUEBLO, Colo., March 7.—Pueblo was the scene of a remarkable freak of the wind last evening. During a comparatively calm a whirlwind of large size descended at the steel works of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company and tore from their foundations twelve iron smokestacks forty feet high and two feet in diameter, lifting some of them as high as thirty feet. The huge iron cylinders were scattered in all directions. The wind continued its course, working havoc in a space ten feet wide for 300 feet before its energy was spent. No one was hurt and no disturbance occurred elsewhere.

Wrecked the Wrong Train.

GAINESVILLE, Texas, March 7.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to wreck express train No. 2 on the Santa Fe three miles north of Paul's Valley, I. T., yesterday morning. WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Death Close to Travelers on a Pennsylvania Railway Special.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 7.—The Pennsylvania railroad special No. 20, which arrived at Columbus at 8:10 p. m. and left at 8:20, met with an accident at Reed avenue crossing, two miles east of the city. The following were badly injured:

BELL, C. C. H., brakeman.
COOPER, BERT, telegraph operator.
JENKINS, JAMES, fireman.
MCCORMICK, JOHN, fireman.
WILSON, M. L., car inspector.

This is the solid vestibuled limited, and carries passengers from Cincinnati, St. Louis and the west to New York. It is generally well crowded with passengers. There is a target tower at Reed avenue, which is two stories high, and from which the interlocking switch apparatus is operated. The train had just passed the tower at a rate estimated to be about twenty miles an hour, when the last sleeper jumped the track and was thrown against the target, being practically smashed into kindling wood. The force and weight of the sleeper leaving the track pulled the other cars off. A telegraph pole standing near the tower was broken off by the force of the sleeper when it jumped the track and one end of it ran through the sleeper. The greatest of excitement prevailed among the passengers, but none were seriously injured, although many of them have suffered cuts and bruises and severe shocks.

STRIKERS ON THE MARCH.

Large Bodies Moving Toward Fayetteville, Where the Jail Is Located.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7.—The crisis which was expected to come at Eagle last night failed to occur. Everything passed off quietly, Sheriff Hinman making but two more arrests. Walker Wyant and W. C. Schaub, arrested with Col. Wyant Sunday, returned to Eagle last night from Fayetteville with a guard. It is currently rumored that the strikers are concentrating their forces near Fayetteville for an attack on the county jail to liberate the strikers confined there. The officers here neither affirm nor deny the rumor. There is unusual activity and secrecy at the military headquarters. Two Gatling guns and a full supply of ammunition are on their way to Eagle. Two dead and thirteen wounded is the latest report of the result of last Wednesday's fray. News confirmatory of the rumors has been received. It is to the effect that a large body of strikers had left Montgomery for Fayetteville, where the jail is located, while another large body is moving toward the same point from Mount Carbon.

PASTOR ASKS WHAT YOUNG MEN WANT.

REV. S. P. WILDER ON AN INTERVIEWING TOUR.

He Makes Personal Inquiries as to Changes that Would Lead to Greater Efficiency in Church Work—Men's Sunday Evening Club Has Proved a Success.

Rev. S. P. Wilder has borrowed a method from newspaper work and is busy "interviewing." He is questioning Janesville young men as to what changes they would suggest in local church work to give the churches a better hold on them and their companions. His sermon next Sunday will review his investigations and will have for its theme "What the Church Owes to Young Men." A sermon on March 18 will deal with "What Young Men Owe to the Church." It is developed by the answers of many young men that a popular choral has been struck by forming the Men's Sunday Evening Club. The clubs have been a success whenever established. The order first took root in Appleton and the Appleton club is the principal one in the state if not outranking in numbers and efficiency all others in the country. It numbers now four hundred and four active members, against two hundred and sixty-one at its first anniversary one year ago. Its receipts for its second year from all sources were $1,771.84, as against $893.81 the year before or nearly double. The club is by no means confining itself to its Sunday evening work, but is immeasurably helpful to the church and the city in many ways.

The direct aim of the club is to make a better Sunday evening service and indirectly to help in any way possible the general welfare of the church and the city. As the answers which Rev. Mr. Wilder has received may suggest, the more the churches set themselves about securing the welfare of the cities in which they are located, the more will they win the confidence and co-operation of energetic, intelligent, aggressive men.

NOTES ON BOWER CITY POLITICS

Republican City and Ward Committees to Meet This Evening.

Republican committees meet at the Thoroughgood office this evening to arrange for the ward caucuses and the city convention. The meeting is public and any republican who desires may attend. How is it with the democrats? True, democrats may name committees, but they are only for "figure heads." The bosses do the business in secret and spring their orders on the unsuspecting rank and file as the orders of "The Committee."

The political field for city attorney appears still open, a kind of free for all, with no pronounced republican candidates named. Democrats are mentioning E. M. Hyzer as their candidate.

Charley Horn having retired from the field the democratic bosses are now training P. W. Ryan for the street commissioner'ship this spring.

F. S. Winslow is being boomed for the Third ward aldermanship. Should he be successful, one thing is incalculably certain, the common council would realize that the Third ward had a wide awake representative. C. C. Bennett's name has also been suggested, he coming from the Milton avenue end of the ward that thinks it should have more of a voice in city affairs.

Frank Hazelton is the latest suggestion from Fourth ward democrats as to aldermanic timber.

Democrats have secured considerable advantage over the republicans in the spring election by setting aside the registration of voters. It is claimed that this act alone will give the democrats at least two hundred votes in the city. However, republicans will keep close watch, and challenge all who are suspected of voting illegally. A few arrests may serve as a wholesome lesson to such persons.

ROSENFELD.

REAR-ADMIRAL LUIZ FELIPE DE SALDANHA DA GAMA,
Leader of the Brazilian Revolution—The Man Admiral Benham Taught to Let American Merchantmen Alone.

HE HAS GAINED BY MERIT

Honor Won By Work, Not Bought By Chance—No Royal Road.

It is with great pleasure that we write from time to time of the eminent work being done by one of the most skilled and experienced specialists in this country on diseases of eye, ear, nose, throat or lungs.

At first it was his intention to settle in a much larger city, but through the influence of friends he concluded to locate here permanently. He gives the most thorough and scientific examinations that can possibly be made with all the latest improved instruments. Essential to the cure of any disease is the correct diagnosis of the case, for what can be expected of a line of treatment when a person does not take the right medicine? Each and every person undergoes a thorough examination, and plenty of time is given to each one, no matter how many are in the waiting rooms.

The doctor comes with letters and recommendations which cannot be surpassed and he is meeting with great success, as he is the only man in this part of the state who makes a specialty of the eye, ear, nose throat and lungs. He is proving a great blessing to those who have suffered from the grippe, pneumonia and catarrhal consumption, especially to those whose catarrh has been driven from the nose or throat into the lungs by ill treatment of their catarrh, which often turns into consumption. The doctor has made a special study of these diseases, and says he has found the key to their prevention and cure. Many die from lung trouble, said to be consumption, which is not consumption. Now, in case you have weak lungs, or only bronchial catarrhal trouble, it would be of great benefit for you to go and have a friendly talk with this great specialist, no matter if you do not want to be treated. The doctor is pleasant and agreeable, and will give you his consultation free of charge. The doctor whom we speak of here is Dr. H. A. McChesney, one of the greatest eye, ear, nose, throat and lung specialists in the world. Office in the Wilcox block, opposite the Hotel Myers, Janesville, Wisconsin.

OLD FLAGMAN HIT BY AN ENGINE

John Kingsley Badly Hurt in the C. M. & St. P. Switch Yards.

John Kingsley, the gate tender at the North Academy street railway crossing, was run down by a switch engine last night. His left leg was broken at the ankle, a large gash cut from the left ear around to the back of his head, penetrating to the skull. The patrol ambulance was called and Kingsley was taken to his home on West Bluff street. Dr. James Gibson attended the injured man.

Mr. Kingsley was watching the approach of a freight train on the St. Paul track, his back being to the switch engine. Yardmaster Bidwell, was riding on the pilot of the engine, and seeing the flagman just in time pushed him to one side, and thus prevented a fatal accident. Kingsley is well advanced in years and has been in the employ of the railway companies many years.

AFTON SWITCH YARD BLOCKED

Big Trains From Janesville Fill the Track—Patrons Make a Change

AFTON, March 6.—The C. & N. yards at this place are taxed some days to their utmost capacity, and all because of the immense trains sent down from the county metropolis, the major portion of which have to be left here, owing to heavy grades down the line. Monday 157 cars came down from Janesville, and a "double-header" was sent south from here with a train of 46 cars, while other crews "doubled" between Afton and Caledonia. G. A. Lawton, Jr., has been called to his home at De Pere, Wis., by the serious illness of his wife, and his father and brother, William, are here superintending the work on the new store building.

The Patrons met at the residence of William Brickman last Saturday evening and enjoyed themselves hugely by indulging in a mock trial of sensational character. No 2616 will sever all connection from the P. of I. organization but will wait till before they decide what course to pursue regarding affiliation with some other kindred order, or independent organization as a literary and debating society. Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Sims, of Grand Forks, N. D. are the guests of relatives here. Two more surprise parties formed a part of last week's society events. One was held at the residence of Edward Hammell, on Wednesday evening for his son, Ferdinand, while on Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. George S. O. were the parties surprised. Both affairs proved enjoyable. Jacob C. Rodden of Oak Center, Wis., is visiting friends in this vicinity. The annual meeting of patrons of the Afton creamery will be held at the creamery next Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Business of importance will come up for consideration and a full attendance is desired. Miss Rose B. Eldredge closed her school in the Smyth district, Newark, last Friday, with appropriate exercises. Prof. Bradley, of New York, will visit Afton next week and tell of the mysteries of phenology. He is highly spoken of. Charles P. Wilcox, of Oregon, Wis., is spending a few days with Afton friends. The Ladies' Sewing Circle is arranging for an entertainment and supper to be held in the near future. Musical and literary talent from abroad are expected to assist.

Vaccination Closes a Center School

CENTER, March 6.—The school in District No. 1 closed at noon for one week, the pupils being sick from vaccination. Grant Fisher will run his father's farm this season. The concert that was to be given last Tuesday night in the hall was postponed on account of bad weather. Notice of date will appear later. Horace Wright has removed his family to Clark county. Miss Anna C. Fisher will spend the coming summer in Ohio. George Whitmore has the western fever.

Two Deaths in Magnolia.

MAGNOLIA, March 6.—Joseph York died February 23, at the home of David Acheson of paralysis, aged sixty-eight years. The day before his death he attended the mite society at George Letts. When returning at night he was stricken down, and unable to reach home. Death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bahr, March 1, taking their only child, little Lloyd, aged two months and twenty-one days. Vaccination is laying up the most of the children. Some are quite sick.

Afton Creamery Meeting.

The annual meeting of the patrons of Afton Creamery will be held at the creamery Wednesday March 14th at 9:30 a. m. Among other questions that will come up for consideration is that of making cheese during the coming season. It is desirable that all interested in dairy matters should be present at this meeting. J. W. MILLER, president, U. G. WAITE, secretary.

A FINE suit of overcoat can now be bought at Rosenfeld's for $6.95.

ROCK STANDS THIRD IN VETERAN RELIEF.

ONLY TWO COUNTIES PAY MORE LIBERALLY.

Simon Smith, J. C. Metcalf and A. C. Gray Have the Handling of $3,600 For the Aid of Indigent Veterans—Entire State Paid Nearly $100,000 Last year.

Rock county paid $3,600 as a relief fund for veterans last year. The question has frequently been asked how this sum compares with the amount raised in other counties and what the relief tax in the entire state amounts to. The amounts raised in each county could only be learned by a large amount of correspondence, and the extent of the state's generosity to indigent old soldiers has remained a matter of conjecture. No state has more fully realized the debt it owes to the old soldiers who fought in the rebellion. Under the law county boards are requested to levy a tax of one-fifth of a mill upon the taxable property of their respective counties, or if that is in their judgment inadequate for the purpose, a tax not exceeding two-fifths of a mill to create a fund for the "relief of indigent or needy Union soldiers sailors and marines and the indigent or needy wives, widows and minor children of indigent or deceased union soldiers, sailors and marines." This fund is administered by a soldiers' relief commission, composed by three persons appointed by the county judge, two of whom must be honorably discharged soldiers. The members of the commission are allowed the same compensation allowed members of the county board and actual expenses. Simon Smith of Beloit, is president of the county board, J. C. Metcalf, secretary and A. C. Gray, of Evansville, the third member. All are veterans.

The total amount of taxes levied for this Soldiers Relief fund by the different county boards of the state last year was $92,028.14. Rock's $3,600 stands third on the list. Milwaukee raised $16,000 last year and Dane county $4945, while Eau Claire county ranks fourth. Racine county pays only $2000.

AGNES HERNDON'S TRIUMPH.

"La Belle Marie, or a Woman's Revenge," Is a Play for the People.

"Its farce is not crude, its best devices are not clumsily provided with words, and some of its strongest scenes are so artistic that a discriminating audience would applaud them; it has also the winning merit, novelty for the wronged woman does not die in the last act.

A country girl is wronged and discarded by her heartless wooer. She does not "snivel," but declares her purpose of punishing him. That is essentially a prologue, although numbered as the first act, the play proper being devoted to the maiden's most unique scheme of retaliation. The inheritance of a large fortune convinces her in the undertaking, for it enables her to become a fine lady as to clothes and education.

Miss Herndon's performance commands the respect of those who had come to judge as well as the liking of those who were there merely to be entertained.

The company was above general average, and the play was a success.—New York Sun August 14.

The above from the most critical of all the New York dailies speaks volumes in praise of the great actress who appears at Myers' opera house, Tuesday evening, March 20th.

OVERHEAD ROAD IN THE FOURTH

Janesville Machine Company Build a Line For Freight.

The Janesville Machine Company is building an overhead railway connecting their several shops with the main building on Center street. The road commences in the paint shop of the main building, crosses Center street midway between Franklin and River passes the second story door of the machine shop, at which there is an elevator, and then continues on in a northerly direction to the foundry and beyond to the store house on Pleasant street. The road is high enough so it will not interfere with traffic on the ground. It will be used specially for carrying material in course of manufacture from one department to another. The road is being substantially built, and will be operated by muscle instead of electricity.

WHERE ARE THOSE SHABRAQUES?

A Year Ago Governor Peck and His Staff Were in Gold Lace.

This anniversary of the last inauguration of President Cleveland reminds us that a year ago Governor Peck and General Doe and the hollyhocks of Governor Peck's staff were in Washington exhibiting to the astonishing multitude shabraques in comparison with which the gay caparisons of circus horses are dull and faded. The little business cost the state somewhere more than a thousand dollars, or enough to buy 2000 bushels of the best wheat which any Wisconsin farmer has had in his granary.—Madison Journal.

Gentlemen:

A profitable inducement to you.

Would you invest one dollar if you were certain to receive two dollars in return? Will not mix words about our offers, we need room for our spring stock, which is now arriving, several cases are here now. We're unable to make room unless we dispose of the bulk of our heavy weight stock. There's only one way to do this quickly and that is we've to give our stock of winter woollens away, without profit; we'll make them up with our usual good care at the actual cost of materials and workmanship. If you do not want any winter woollens, inspect our new stock of spring goods, equally as cheap. We'll keep our tailors busy at any cost. Hardly any need quoting prices, you must see the goods to appreciate them. Is it necessary to urge you to be prompt in your selection? The best styles always go first. "The early bird, &c."

SPOOKY LEGEND ABOUT THE FIRE.

OLD STORIES OF ITS ACCIDENTAL DISCOVERY.

The South Sea Islands and the Great Fire Whale—The Chinese Superstition—The Ute Indians Have a Remarkable Belief.

FOR SIX THOUSAND years at least man has pondered over the phenomena of fire. To day no one knows much more in regard to its origin, discovery and first use than does the superstitious Parsee, who will not approach the sacred flames (and to him all flames are sacred) without wearing a mask over his mouth for fear that his breath will poison the divine element.

One of the most remarkable of the American Indian fire legends is that of the Utes. They tell of a time in the remote past when all the world, and the Utes in particular, were without fire and shivering with cold. One day a spark fell from heaven and was caught in the beak of a talking bird, an operation which, of course, smothered the fire. The bird was one of the migratory species, and to make good the loss, told an old chief what fire was, and where it could be obtained. The place the bird told of was far to the south of the Ute country, but it was decided to station braves at the distance of "one run" apart, and in this way attempt to bring a lighted torch from the land of the "fire people."

The emissary sent on this important mission provided himself with an indestructible torch, in the shape of a headdress made of eagle plumes. He then stationed his men at the distance of one run apart along the entire route from the Ute country to the "land of fire."

The Ute found the fire people dancing around a sacred flame, which issued from a hole in the ground. The monster became entangled in a grove of tall trees (a species of evergreen whose branches easily ignite) and, while gnashing his teeth in his impotent rage, struck off a spark which lighted the grove and consumed both trees and whale. Fires which are said to have been perpetuated since the day of the "Great Whale Fire" may yet be seen in many of the islands.

The other legend is to the effect that a great air dragon (probably lightning) breathed on a tall tree and set its branches on fire. From the coals of this tree they learned the value of fire, and have ever since used the element for domestic purposes and in their religious rites.

They also have a tradition that the time will come when the dragon will return for the fire and that no man will be able to withstand him and save the sacred spark except he be a person born with pink eyes, fair skin and white hair.

A Whimsical Chap.

Once tried to quote Bulwer (was it Bulwer?) and said, "Great oaks from little acorns grow," and altho' he didn't exactly quote he got there, got there as it were, with both feet, at least with a part of both.

"The be or not to be," said Shakespeare, (or Bacon?) and he too, may not be far off. Foot it over hill and dale, 'til you are weary and foot-sore, and you cannot find such bargains as we offer in building sites, Homesites, for on these and the prices of the same and terms, too, we always did "use the mark." For some reason we are this spring getting onto the goods, the prices and the terms with both feet. And so, with Hamlet we soliloquize: "The wonder grows", why people are not "up in arms" when the prices we quote are looked into. You can get a home, if you wish, so long as we are in the business; hard times don't count. If you are not earning so much money as you did last year, we will meet you; it don't matter.

Homesites and Homes are our fad; to help people get 'em is what we are on earth for, this time.

The main secret, we suppose, why we always get the major part of the real estate trade going, is that we own a large part of the property that we offer. Another part of the secret is, we deal every time so that our customer sends to us his or her friend when they want to deal.

Our beginnings here were not large, but so true it is that "Great oaks from little acorns grow," that the "birds of the air" have their homes,—build their nests,—in the result of our grain of mustard seed. Come over and roost with us. Yours very truly,

GLENN AT Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

Janesville Boy Represents the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Fred Glenn, a former Janesville boy and student in Dr. Mills office represents the College of Physicians and surgeons of Chicago at the Y. M. C. A. convention which is being held in Detroit, Mich. It is said to be the largest convention of its kind ever held in the world. Fifteen hundred delegates are in attendance representing nearly every college in the United States and Canada. Among the delegates are 250 medical students. Park, Davis & Co. of Detroit, the headquarters of the largest manufacturing chemical establishment in the United States sent special invitation to them to visit their place of business which was accepted. Special street cars were sent to convey them out a mile and a half. Guides attended them, and explained briefly the workings of the institution after which the band came out and entertained them while refreshments were served. They also visited Harpers hospital. The Nurses Home, the Detroit Medical college and took a trip over to Canada where for a short time they stood under the protection of the British flag. Many eloquent divines are in attendance and a fine program is furnished every day. The convention has been one of great pleasure and lasting benefit to all.

SOME SURPRISING ADVENTURES.

A Collection of Entertaining Tales Illustrative of Bruin's Sagacity and Ferocity. An Adventure in the Arctic—How a Bear Fancier Came to Grief.

One afternoon when lying off Bear Island two boats' crews left the New Bedford whaler Menkar for the shore, looking for bears, walrus or whatever might turn up and furnish the men with something out of the ordinary, since there had been no whales sighted for some time and life on shipboard was getting monotonous. One of the boats was commanded by the mate. Immediately after landing the crew of this boat saw a number of white bears on a slight, snow-capped eminence. They paid no attention to the approach of the men. Conspicuous in the party was a powerful old sea bear and her cub.

With foolhardy and cruel recklessness the mate advanced and plunged his lance into the body of the cub. With a roar of rage the old bear rushed at the nearest of the men, who happened to be a nephew of the captain, named Pease. The latter fled precipitately, with bruin at his heels and his shipmates following as closely as possible and trying to divert the bear's attention. As they had no firearms or other long range weapons, their endeavors in this direction were in vain. The race was a hot one. Occasionally the bear would stop a moment and try to strike Pease with his paw, and these brief interruptions of bruin's pace enabled the young man to maintain his lead.

Their course led them to the verge of a precipice some 60 feet in height, and as they neared it and could see the water below the mate caught sight of the captain's boat with several men in her but a short distance away. In his despair he called upon the men in the boat to shoot, but they seemed bewildered and did nothing.

The next moment the two were at the edge of the precipice. The youth halted for a moment and then made the leap. The bear followed without hesitation. Pease landed on a projection about 20 feet down, sinking up to his armpits in the snow, while bruin passed directly over him and struck the water. The bear was speedily dispatched by the men in the boat, and young Pease was rescued from his position, feeling none the worse for his adventure.

Lively Encounter With a Grizzly.

"The amount of lead a grizzly will take into his anatomy without serious results is simply wonderful. I have seen an old fellow fairly filled with lead and still be in fighting trim," said Jim Long, an old settler of New Mexico, to a Chicago Record correspondent. "A few years ago," he continued, "I had a bunch of cattle over in the Gila country. During our first two months there we heard from various parties who had cattle near us that bears were very plentiful and that one old grizzly had run three or four outfits, all of them having failed to kill her, although they had shot her several times.

"One day I started out alone in quest of this grizzly. I was riding slowly along when I saw down a little grade four bears feeding in the brush. They were so busy thrashing around among the oaks gathering the nuts that they had not seen me. My horse was an old hunter, steady as a rock, and I knew there was no danger of his leaving me. Two large old fellows were feeding close together. Slipping gently from my horse, I let drive at one of them, aiming for the butt of his ear, ranging back. All this was of course in less time than I can tell it.

"When the bear received my shot, which was unfortunately too low, striking him in the shoulder, he evidently thought for a moment that the other bear had struck him, for he backed off and gave it a most terrific blow, knocking it some 20 or 30 feet. A stroke from a full grown grizzly's paw, let me tell you, is no joke either, as a grizzly can crush a horse's skull at a single sweep of his paw. The bear scrambled to his feet in an instant, and I let him have it again as he rose, breaking his neck.

"The other, which was an old sea bear, started for me, and I opened on her. My rifle is a 46, with chilled ball. With reloaded shells, as mine were, I used 65 grains of powder, but I let her have it three times in the throat and once in the mouth without stopping her, and she was within 40 feet of me when I heard a noise to my left. Glancing out of the corner of my eye, I saw that one of the other bears was coming for me from that side. There was no time for thought. What was to be done must be done instantly.

"At dismounting I had dropped old Charlie's rein. In an instant I gathered it up and slipped into my saddle. Old Charlie must have made about 20 feet at the first lunge. I gathered myself together, and as the horse circled around the last one I put three bullets into him at short range, but did not knock him down. The old sea bear was following me up, grunting like an enraged bear. I took another shot at her, putting a bullet right through her heart, but she still came on, with the bloody foam flying out of her mouth and the blood spurting in a stream from her last wound at every step.

"I shoved in some fresh cartridges, the horse keeping some distance ahead of her at a little canter. I could but notice the expression of her great blocky face as she followed me. It was full of a dumb rage that was sickening to see, and her small, knowing eyes, now almost red, had a glint in them that meant death.

"She followed me fully 200 yards, growing visibly weaker at every shambling. I had in the meantime taken a couple of shots at her over the horse's tail. At the last she stopped and lay down, too sick to go farther, but ready to fight still if the way she looked toward me was any indication.

"Seeing it was all up with her, I began to look round for the second one I had shot. He had dragged himself up the slope, leaving a broad trail behind him. I soon overtook him, and a shot behind the fore leg settled his case. The first lay where he dropped, quite dead. When I examined the old sea bear, I found more than a dozen old bullet wounds on her. It was doubtless the one that had been the terror of the country."

A Night In a Tree.

George Reese, an old trapper of the upper Yellowstone valley, relates the following as one of the closest calls that he ever had: "I went out with my cayuse one day to see if I couldn't skeer out a deer. Didn't have any luck at all, so I wuz a-sittin' down chawin away on my bite o' grass when all 'twunst I heard Buster—that's the cayuse—give a neigh and a snortlike, and he cum runnin toward me zif samthin wuz up, and when I tried to stop him he jist rushed past like a streak and wudn't be ketched at all. Waal, I didn't run arter him, but made up my min that thar might be a bar or somethin else lo'in' roon, and so I slipped up toward a passel of bushes to fin out what in the livin natur' the racket meant.

"About the fust I know'd a hull gang of big bars cum tarin out of the brush and started lickety-split rite toward me, and I hadn't even time to shoot, for they wuz cumin in a mity big hurry, as zif a cyclone wuz pushin' 'em along. If I stuck to my gun, I know'd they'd ketch me, so I jist dropped the shootin' weepin and dug out for life. Ez luck wud hev it, thar wuz a pretty fair sized tree near by, so I made lightnin tracks to reach it, and when I got thar I jumped and ketched hold of a projection 'im' and swung myself up in a hurry, but the next minute them bars—five in all—wuz a growlin and snarin and snappin roon thar 'ar tree' 'nuff to beat a hull menagerie.

"They believed they'd got me, sure, and they looked up wicked like, as zif they felt mity sartin. Any one o' the varmints wuz big 'nuff to hev chawed me plum to pieces in a second or two and bin fitein mad cawz thar wuzn't more. I got up in the forks of the tree, 'bout 15 feet from the groun, and thar I cinched myself to wait thar comin up. Them bars clim'd an clim'd till they'd nearly git me, and then they'd shake and shake till they rattled me so thar I'en 'most thot I'd hev to drop down among 'em. But I continued to hang thar and hold on in spite of 'em till I really b'lieve the bars thot I hed grown rite fast to the tree and cudn't be shuck out at all. But they war bilin over with mad and didn't want to give up the job. S'pose if I hedn't give them thar bars some mity smart raps on the snouts with a stick thar I'd cut off the tree they might hev got me anyhow for sartin. But jist as they'd git up to me I'd give 'em some powerful whacks on their smellers, and then they'd drop back and wait awhile to rest their bloody noses.

"Waal, sir, would you b'lieve it, them thar tarnaal bars kept me up thar tree all the biggest hiff of the afternoon, the hull night and till plum daylight the next mornin, and I wuz hungry enough to hev eaten a billed stone. Soon's they hed got out o' sight I knocked roon and foun my gun and took the n' shute fur home."

A Mountaineer's Revenge.

One of the most striking characters that ever lived in the character gathering community of Hot Springs, Ark., was old Stephen Rutherford. He kept a sort of roadside, which he designated as Bear Park, and made his living by administering to the thirst and catering to the amusement of the wayfaring man. The amusement consisted of a black bear—old, lazy and flea bitten. This animal, advertised as of most furious disposition, was kept chained to a tree in the back lot, and at evening, when the accommodating dusk threw a hiding shade over the bear's most striking faults—i. e., laziness and flea bites—old Steve would announce to his guests that he was now about to engage in the dangerous feat of wrestling with the ferocious monster from the Mississippi swamps. Those who knew the trick drank their beer in unconcern, but those who did not paid 25 cents and passed into the back lot to see the desperate encounter.

One afternoon, when old Steve was sitting on his veranda, a man from the mountains came along, driving a red mule and a white steer hitched to a shaky and creaky wagon. In the wagon there were a few small cabbages and a black bear.

"Say," said the mountain man, stopping his team, "don't you want to buy the finest bar you ever seen?"

"No," Steve replied. "Got all the bar I want."

"But you ain't got no sech bar as this here one."

"No, and I don't want no sech kitten of a thing as that."

"Now, look here, mister, that ain't no way to do—insult a man's bar. I have traveled 75 miles with this bar, and you air the fust man that has offered him an insult. That ain't observin the common courtesies that is due a bar that ain't never done you no harm. But puttin that all to one side, let me ask you seriously if you want to buy a bar?"

"I told you that I've got all the bar I want," old Steve sharply replied.

The mountain man gathered up his hickory flail as if he would drive on, but then, with the appearance of having changed his mind, stretched his long neck toward old Steve and said:

"When you say you've got all the bar you want, I reckon you mean that mouse gnawed and bug eat invalid out yander in the back lot."

Steve got up, and mastering his anger and attempting to speak in a quiet way said: "I have been livin here a good while and I arned how to be smooth in my manners, but when a man that I ain't never pestered in no way comes along here and willfully insults a member of my family, why, it's time for me to act."

"I don't know nothin about yo' family and wouldn't, thar'fo', insult a member of it," the mountain man replied. "You said that this here bar is a kitten of a thing, and then I said that the bar over yander in the lot is bug eat, and I am willin to leave it to any jury that can be raked up in this town that I am right. I know what it is to be bug eat, and I don't blame the bar, for I don't reckon he could help it. I had a dog once that was bug eat—as kind hearted and gentlemanly a dog as you ever seen—and I didn't hold him responsible. Say, now, without any mo' foolishness, don't you want to buy a bar?"

Steve placed his hand on a post to steady himself. He looked at the mountain man with all the contempt he could throw into his watery eyes, and then, still under so strong a restraint that the baggy knees of his trousers quivered, thus delivered himself:

"I am tryin to make an honest livin, and I hope to join the church some day, but if you don't go away from here I'll hurt you, and I'll make it a pint of hurtin you mighty bad. Do you hear?"

"Oh, yes, I hear, and rather than have any difficulty I'll harken, but I do hope that befo' you join the church and befo' the day is over, for that matter, you may change yo' mind about this bar. Get ep, boy!" He swung his hickory and dealt the mule a decisive blow.

Business was dull, and Steve nodded and dreamed as he sat on the veranda. He was aroused by a noise, and looking up he saw that the mountain man had again stopped at the gate.

"Look here," Steve yelled, now under very little restraint, "thought I told you to go on away from here."

"You did tell me, and I did go away, but that didn't keep me from comin back again. I have been to nearly every place in this town, and nobody don't seem to want a bar, and the fact has begun to crawl into my mind that the bar market down here is pretty dull. Down yander jist now the thought struck me that arter all you mount want a real bar, and as I am willin to help you out with yo' wants I will let you have this here one for $10."

Steve went out to the gate. He put his elbows on a wheel of the wagon, and looking hard at the mountain said:

"I have been very kind to you."

"I haven't made that discovery, but if you have been kind to me I'm much obliged."

"I have been kind to you, and now I want to tell you what I'm goin to do. I'm goin to maul you."

And he did maul him. He snatched the mountain man out of the wagon and walloped him in the road. And during the performance the bear sat in the wagon and looked on with an indifference complete in every detail. The mountain man climbed back to his seat as soon as Steve granted him that privilege, and gathering up his hickory said: "After all, I reckon you know yo' own mind best. Don't reckon you really do want to buy a bar. Good day, sah!"

Evening came, and strangers who had heard that a desperate man would wrestle with a ferocious bear gathered at the place of encounter.

"Now, gentlemen," said Steve, "the time has come for me to show you what a white man can do. All my folks were bar fighters, and so far as heard from not one of them was ever whipped. Some hunters have just brought in a monstrous bar from down in the bottoms, and all that want to see me fight him jist pay 25 cents and come ahead."

A number of men paid their money and followed him into the back lot. Steve conducted the spectators to the tree where the bear was chained. The brown of evening, making a mystery of the huge black mass of animal life and hiding the patches on his coat, proclaimed him a savage monster.

"Gentlemen," said Steve, "befo' I go into this here fight I want to tell you that I don't deserve no sympathy, for I have brought it on myself. Here goes."

He made a lunge at the bear. The monster threw himself in an upright position against the tree and caught Steve in his arms. For a moment there was silence, and then a loud yell split the stillness of the deepening twilight. The bear boxed Steve, he hugged him time and time again and then appeared to be biting him.

"Take him away! He's killing me!" the gladiator cried. Two men seized Steve's legs and drew him beyond the bear's reach, and the monster—and indeed he was one now—stretched his chain in the effort to renew the engagement. Steve was taken into the house. He was covered with blood, and it was evident that a number of his ribs were broken.

"Have you anything to say?" some one asked. "It may be probable that you can't talk after awhile."

"All I've got to say is this," Steve groaned—"I wish I hadn't got so intimate with that blamed bar."

Several men went out with a lantern to look at the victor. They found nothing but a chain under the tree, but down farther, in a fence corner, they found a worn and flea bitten bear asleep. Had they continued their search, however, they might have found, down the road, a mountain man helping his bear into a wagon, and they might possibly have learned that the mountain man, for purposes peculiarly his own, had liberated the lazy bruin and had temporarily chained his own bear to the tree.

Thief Powder.

"Thief powder" has been invented by a merchant at Buda-Pesth who has long been suffering from mysterious robberies. This powder is sprinkled over safes and cash drawers and clings to the hands of any one who attempts to open such receptacles. Having laid his trap, the merchant next morning found that a large sum had disappeared from his drawer, as usual, so he called up his clerks for inspection. One man's hands looked rather blue, and the merchant bade him wash before him. When the hands were in the water, they turned deep blue, the effects of the thief powder, thus bringing home the crime to the right man.

Life or Death?

It is of vital importance that it should be understood by persons whose kidneys are inactive that this condition of things is finally inevitable of a state of the organs where life hangs in the balance. Bright's disease, diabetes, albuminuria are all diseases of a very obtrusive character in their mature stage, and all have a fatal tendency. They often battle the most practiced medical skill, and the most approved remedies of materia medica. But opposed at the outset—that is to say, when the kidneys begin to discharge their function ineffectively, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the dangerous tendency is checked. Very useful, also, is this household medicine for those ailments of common occurrence, constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia and nervousness. It is a safeguard against malaria and averts chronic rheumatism.

SHOUTS IN CHURCH
JUST AS OF YORE.JOHN W. HAMILTON PROMI-NENT IN RELIGIOUS WORK.

Sisters Who Have Had Experience With this World's Fleeting Show Advise the Minister to Shut Him off—E. M. Hardy Tells About Several Old Deals.

They don't want John W. Hamilton on in Spokane Falls. The chief of police writes the Gazette that he merely wants to hear how the sanguine manufacturer is progressing. The two used to be acquainted. A letter from Middleton, Pa., tells how the whilom Janesville "capitalist" is working things in the east. The writer says:

"Your man, John W. Hamilton, is in town as is also his man Friday, George A. Hensel. They came here a few months ago representing that they were ready to start a novelty works for the purpose of manufacturing washing machines, etc., as a branch factory for some concern back west. They accepted offers made them by Messrs. Hoffer and Zetter, of this place, who had some land in East Middleton. They organized a company with a capital of $15,000 and then peddled the stock, trading it to grocers for groceries, etc., with Hamilton holding one share and Mrs. Hamilton the balance so as to give them the controlling interest. I am told some of the stock was sold as low as $30 a share.

"The building they are erecting is going up very slowly. Hamilton has made quite a loud profession at a revival of religion here but some of the old shrewd sisters advised their pastor not to call on that man again.

"He has been shown the letters that came from your town and simply makes light of the matter and says those are just his enemies who are trying to injure him. I don't see how he really can make much out of this town because it is pretty generally known now that he has left a bad record in your place, and I believe the man will be baffled in his efforts."

E. M. Hardy Tells of an Old Deal.

EDITOR GAZETTE—The reason the note John W. Hamilton mentions in his "explanatory note" was not paid when due was because the said Hamilton failed to make due his agreement with me, which was in writing, and affected the purchase of the bicycle. Because of this he dared not have the note presented for payment until after I had shaken off the shackles of his illegal corporation with which I was connected. Then I refused to pay until efforts were repeatedly and unsuccessfully made to collect a note of $135 and an open account of over $100 for printing done for "our secretary" and brother-in-law, C. Judd Myers, who had a liberal supply of printed matter gotten out here for what he called the "Keystone Manufacturing Co." and "Champion Manufacturing Co." of Harrisburg, Pa., more of Hamilton's wind concerns. Upon thorough investigation there proved to be nothing to collect from. There was no alternative but to make a settlement of the note which I did on November 11, 1893, turning over the wheel and paying a sum of money besides for interest and use of same and getting my note back marked paid across the face. The wheel, however, has been stored in this city from that day to this awaiting the permanent address of the owner. E. M. HARDY.

THAT PINCOFFS TALE
WAS A GAUZY ONE.FAIRY STORY UNLOADED ON HIS CUSTOMERS.

Purchases of Leaf at Big Prices Were Explained by Talk of an Increase in the Tariff in Germany—No Such Increase is Even Remotely Probable.

Janesville men are doing their best to get some security for the Pincoffs paper. Very little has been found however, that can be attached. What Pincoffs owes in Ohio is not yet known and his eastern affairs are also shrouded in darkness. The United States Tobacco Journal in reviewing the failure says:

"The explanation of Pincoffs' liberal purchases and the high prices paid was that it was necessary to rush the leaf to Germany in advance of a proposed increase of the tariff contemplated by that country. This was all nonsense. The German government never had the remotest intention of raising the import duty on raw leaf. Quite the contrary. The new tariff proposed a reduction of duty from 85 marks to 40 marks per 100 kilograms. It was on the manufactured article—the article manufactured in Germany, that is to say, upon which it was proposed to increase the internal duty."

Pincoffs has been in business in Chicago, in the export trade for a number of years. Lately his two sons have been associated with him. He used to give drafts on Bremen for his purchase and these drafts were uniformly honored on presentation.

Three Edgerton dealers came near being caught by Pincoffs, but it is said that they lost nothing more than the work of sampling and weighing.

The failure is expected to depress prices in the local leaf market. Ten thousand cases of leaf are dumped on the market in a bunch by the Chicago smash-up. Hence it is not probable that Wisconsin tobacco will be in demand for some time, and then at prices not so high as during the past month.

TRADE SHOULDN'T LEAVE TOWN

Janesville Men Can't Afford to Have Their Wives Buy in Chicago.

A merchant remarked to a Gazette reporter not long since: "There is probably no one thing that hurts the dry goods merchants as much as that class of women who are constantly complaining to their neighbors that they can never find anything in their town, simply because we might happen to be temporarily out of some article; or possibly because what is in stock might not exactly come up to their idea of fineness, etc. They either go straightway to the city or order samples, when a merchant would be only too glad to serve them. The actual trade of such women does not amount to much in itself but their influence on others costs the merchants of Janesville thousands of dollars. One woman in a neighborhood with a bag full of samples will do more to upset women who are usually well satisfied with goods at home, than anything I know of. These same women are usually the wives of men who depend on Janesville for every dollar of their business."

METHODISTS FIGHT A RACE TRACK

C. W. Williams Removal to Galesburg Not by Unanimous Consent.

C. W. Williams wants to move his trotting farm to Galesburg, Ill., and satisfactory arrangements have all but been made. The Methodists of that city oppose the plan, however, and have adopted, a strong set of formal resolutions denouncing the attempt. The resolutions say that such a track will have a tendency to bring there a rough class of people and that the morals of the city will be corrupted.

Crowded All Day.

Today there was a special sale of dress goods. It is almost useless to tell where it was as nearly everybody in the city can answer the question. If they were asked they would at once say "Archie Reid's." Those special Wednesday sales by Reid are becoming very popular. The ladies watch the columns of the papers with the utmost care to see what will be on hand. Today this store was crowded all day with an eager mass of ladies, anxious to get a handsome dress at less than half price. Each and every one went there happy and left the same way with a nice new dress under their arm. Almost all of the large number of packages you saw on the street today came from Archie Reid's dress goods sale.

The Jewel of His Office.

Here is a story of a young man which is credited to a Chicago divine: The night he took the "third" the senior warden, at the proper time, gave him the "jewel." Then the worshipful master, with stately tread and solemn face, came down from his seat in the east, and approaching the young candidate said:
"My brother, what is the jewel of your office?"
The young man blushed, and in a hesitating manner stammered out:
"The typewriter."
The face of the worshipful master relaxed into a smile, and he said:
"Well, that is not exactly the answer I expected, but as you have alluded to typewriters, let me ask you which one you prefer?"
There was no hesitation on the part of the candidate this time. With a happy look he answered eagerly:
"Oh, the blonde."—Masonic Chronicle.

Her French and His.
"Marie thinks M. de Franconi is just horrid."
"Why?"
"You know she mastered French in boarding-school and so she spoke to him in his native tongue. And then he shook his head and said: 'Par-don, mademoiselle. I don't understand nuzzing but French.'"
—Chicago Record.

The Old, Old Story.

"Oh, we can't," replied the other, without thinking; "that is Bridget's day out."

It Was Correct.
"Say, you charge me too much for this light," he growled as he paid the electric light company for his last month's account.
"Oh, no," smiled the collector, "that's our current price to everyone."

Magistrate—Why did you enter that man's house and rob his safe?
Prisoner—Please, y'r honor, I was only tryin' to raise a little money to buy meself a position on the police force!—Puck.

Very Dashing.
"That young widow Flison is quite a dashing creature, don't you think?"
"I guess you are right. She dashed my hopes most effectually when I asked her to marry me."

ROSENFELD . . .

On the Commercial Chessboard.

Whether detrimental or successful, wise or unwise, we ventured a new move upon the commercial chessboard last month. We ignored the prophesies of hard times howlers, disregarded the opinion of mercantile agencies, dismissed the theories of financiers, and last fall stocked up with a stupendous magazine of fall and winter goods unequal in grandeur, and double in size even to Janesville's booming year, when his highness, Mr. J. W. Hamilton, proposed to make this a second Chicago.

Rosenfeld knows no defeat. The past season with its deplorable condition of the times passes into history as one of the most prosperous seasons on our record. We've clothed more men—even if our receipts were none the larger. Our aim is to be popular. To gain popularity is to do better than the next fellowman. We sell you a better value and take pride in charging you as little as possible. And with such golden principles we march onward and grow like a tapeworm in a well fed man. We have earned glory in the past month, as public benefactors and gained the respect of the buying public of the county. Our cash system of buying makes choice clothing bow to us, and our system of cash selling for this reason is a blessing to those who are willing to pay for what they get—and not elseone's debts.
